

Argument Against the Repeal of Pinole City Council Term Limits

Should voters and taxpayers expect our elected officials to honor their wishes?
The Pinole City Council has decided that they know better than Pinole voters.
In 2008, Pinole Voters passed Measure "N" by a wide margin, 73% YES and 27% NO.
Measure "N" instituted City Council Term Limits, prohibiting any individual Council Member from serving after three consecutive terms. Two years after an individual was termed out, they could run again for a City Council seat.
Ten years have passed and in 2018 the very first Council member would be termed out.

Suddenly, City Council members decided that Term Limits were no longer necessary, ignoring the voters' will and mandate.

Pinole voters are now being asked to Repeal Term Limits and have taxpayers' foot the estimated $30,000 bill.

Over the Years, our City Council has become entrenched, too powerful, self-serving and insulated from the Voters until Election Season rolls around.

Does this benefit our community?

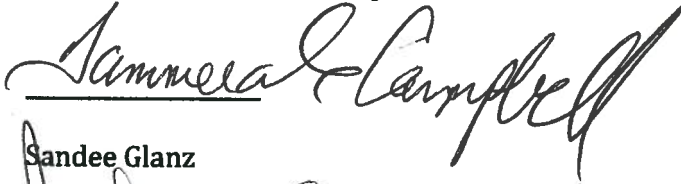

No! Time's up.
